

COUNCIL ORDERS TENTH ST. ELECTROLIERS

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Perhaps one of the most interesting Sunday jaunts for Richmond motorists is a trip to the Oakland airport.

Sundays and Holidays the road leading to the airdrome is crowded with hundreds of cars.

But, at the port there is plenty of parking space for hundreds of machines.

A trip to the airport is not only interesting, but it is educational.

And if there is a young male in the family, nine chances out of ten he will not want to leave the port.

One of the biggest thrills at the port is watching the huge Boeing 32-passenger biplane land at 4 o'clock.

The machine swoops gracefully into the port, its three motors purring softly.

The doors are opened and the passengers get out. The plane is then wheeled into its hangar by men, who are, in comparison to the big plane, just dwarfs.

In one hangar on Sunday a huge Fokker monoplane of the Western Air Express was parked.

This plane looks small until one compares it to the size of a Chevrolet mail truck that is parked next to it. Then one realizes how large the plane really is.

Another interesting part is a tour of inspection of the Boeing Air School, which is conducted by an official of the plant.

Visitors are taken through every part of the school and are given an opportunity to see some of the planes used and to inspect them at close range.

Oakland with its airport has set an example which Richmond could and should follow.

Patience, time, money and leadership should give this city an airport that would be second to none.

NEW MANAGER FOR LOAN CO.

Recognizing Richmond's right to have the same type of financial service obtainable in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Oakland and San Jose, the California Mutual Building and Loan association has changed the status of its local office at 1025 Macdonald avenue, from an agency, carrying on its business through the Oakland office, to a branch, where all loans will be made direct and passed upon by its local officers.

George E. Chambers comes to Richmond as manager, succeeding Henry A. Johnston here as the active head of the local organization. Johnston's many interests as member of the water commission, director of several corporations, and head of his insurance business, which he will continue to operate from the same address, makes it possible for him to devote the necessary full time to building and loan work. He will retain his connection with the association as a member of the advisory board, and as one of the association's appraisers.

W. T. Helm, Larkin J. Younce, Charles S. Renwick, George N. Rooker, Dr. U. S. Abbott, T. H. DeLap, A. P. Hill and H. A. Johnston continue as members of the advisory board with George E. Chambers added as an additional member.

WIFE OF KING CAROL FACES PROBLEM

BUCHAREST, Rumania, June 9.—UP—Princess Helene, who gave love and a son to Prince Carol, only to see him desert them both, faced a vital decision tonight. She could welcome back the prodigal, forgive him his long love affair with Madame Magda Lupescu in Paris, and become Queen of Rumania, or she could stand on the divorce she obtained two years ago, live apart as "Princess Mother" in her palace at Kusyev, and hope for the frequent companionship of 9-year old Michael, now Crown Prince.

All parties except the liberals were united in welcoming Carol as the newly proclaimed king, but chief interest centered on the princess and her attitude.

Two Meet
The situation changed with the hours. After Carol flew here to claim the throne Friday night, it was said Helene would accept a reconciliation and annul her divorce.

Then, on Sunday evening, the two met for the first time in years. They failed to agree to take things up where they had been dropped. Michael's education was entrusted to Carol, presumably over the Princess' protests. The king took Michael to Cotroceni Palace, while Helene remained at Kisseleff.

Yet, today, after promenade through the principal streets with laughing young Michael, Carol took the boy back to Kisseleff Palace and left him there with Helene. The monarch met his former wife in the presence of her mother, the former Queen Elizabeth of Greece, and Prince Nicholas, his younger brother. This meeting gave rise to fresh reports that a reconciliation was in prospect.

With Son
Before setting out for Kisseleff Carol and Michael stood hand in hand on the balcony of Cotroceni Palace to receive the salutes of hundreds of Rumanian people who gathered outside. Michael seemed to be happy that the crowd be-

SCRIBE SLAIN BY CHICAGO GANGSTER

CHICAGO, June 9.—UP—Records for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer or slayers of Alfred 'Jake' Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, were raised to $40,000 tonight by the announcement of an additional $10,000 by the Press Club of Chicago, of which Lingle was a member.

The Tribune had already offered $25,000 and the Chicago Evening Post $5,000.

His death brought added newspaper demands upon the harried police department, struggling to solve the other ten murders which have occurred here in the last ten days.

The slaying of Lingle, known for years to the Chicago editorial fraternity as 'Jake' might have been taken from the list of a movie thriller or the third act of a newspaper stage play, so suddenly and so dramatically was it executed.

The debonair Lingle, himself a typical character from a newspaper drama, strolled out of the Sherman hotel at noon, walked through lunch hour crowds in the loop and then down to the subway which allows pedestrians to pass under fashionable Michigan Boulevard to the Randolph street station of the Illinois Central railroad.

Carefree as ever, Lingle was on his way to the horse races at Washington Park just as he flicked his cigarette, his assassin ran through the crowd nearby and fired twice. One shot entered his head; the other pierced his chest. He died immediately.

Lingle was 37 years old. He had worked for the Tribune 18 years, and was acknowledged as being one of the best-informed men on criminal affairs in Chicago.

He was one of the few reporters who could say "Hello Al" to Alphonse "Scar Face" Capone, and not be met by a tirade of abuse. He was also intimate with Capone's enemies, with George 'Bugs' Moran, and the rest who have struggled with Capone for possession of the million dollar beer and alcohol business.

It was this unparalleled knowledge, said police, which brought his death. He knew too much of the inner workings of the underworld.

BOSTON SAILOR AWAITS BIG BATTLE

NEW YORK, June 9.—UP—The end of a long, hard trail is in sight for Jack Sharkey.

Thursday night should see the Bostonian acclaimed champion of the world, acclaimed by many who have jeered him during his tempestuous career.

The inspiration Sharkey will draw from the belief that he has the backing of American sympathizers in his battle against Max Schmeling for the heavyweight title should provide just the necessary incentive to make Jack deliver one of his good fights.

When Sharkey puts on one of his good fights there is no man pushing leather today who can stand up to him. Like the girl with the curl, when he's bad, he's horrid, but at his best he is the most worthy successor to the title now in sight.

The training period is about at an end, with both men pronounced in shape by their handlers and both are the subject of violent criticism on the part of certain detractors. Experts tell us that Sharkey is flabby and stale, that Schmeling is awkward and a mark for a left hand. But the chances are that each will be ready to give his best Thursday night, when between 75,000 and 80,000 fight fans will jam Yankee stadium to see the fight.

The receipts for the affair will run around $750,000.

On form, Sharkey figures to win this fight by quite a margin, possibly by a knockout. It will be the case of a good left hand against a good right hand, and any boxing fans knows that the former is preferable. Johnny Kilbane and others maintain that Sharkey can be hit easily with a right, which is not so good for a man when the right is socked home the way Maxie can sock. But more experts tell us that Schmeling is what is known in the vernacular as a "sucker for a left hook" and Jack is likely to throw plenty.

It all comes down to a question of whether or not Sharkey can keep his head. He all but lost the Scott fight by growing hysterical. My guess is that we will see a serious, determined Sharkey in action Thursday night, and that Jack will win.

Max Schmeling Ends Training

ENDICOTT, N. Y., June 9.—UP—Max Schmeling boxed six fast rounds against Charlie Belanger, Jack Shaw and Lou Barba today, displaying the best speed and boxing form of his training.

Only Belanger was able to out-box the German, and he was unable to avoid Schmeling's counters and ran afoul of some heavy leads. Manager Jacobs and Schmeling later said the German had engaged in several "secret" workouts in an old barn on the Mix estate where he lives and also had been on the road several times without telling newspapermen.

Max plans to leave here by train Wednesday and spend the night at the home of a friend in New York.

Watch Grease In Front Hubs

There may be sufficient lubricant in the front wheel hub cap to provide the bearing with grease, but the color of that lubricant is to be considered, warns L. G. Evans, general service manager for the National Automobile club. If it has a grayish cast, as is often the case, the chances are that its color comes from abrasive particles chipped off in service. All such grease should be discarded.

Radio As Aid To International Relations Told

TOKYO, June 9.—UP.—The radio as a means of increasing appreciation of good music has found a staunch champion in Miss Nobu Yoshida, one of Japan's greatest pianists, who has returned from a year's study in the United States.

"The radio has had a noticeable effect on the musical appreciation of America," Miss Yoshida told the United Press. "The public still turns out en masse to hear such artists as Rachmaninoff, Kreisler, Heifetz and Hoffman, but attendance at concerts even by mediocre musicians has declined to a considerable extent. This, I believe, is directly due to the fact that the public has been taught by the radio to appreciate only the best music."

"The belief that the radio might cause a decline in attendance at symphony concerts, and the opera has been thoroughly refuted in America for unless one is a subscriber, it is almost impossible to obtain tickets for either."

Miss Yoshida expressed the opinion that the musical world in America is in a state of transition. "America's musical senses are being stimulated by the new and intriguing work of modern composers, which has taken a tremendous hold on the popular imagination. However there is a very evident conservatism which clings to the old masters. On the whole I believe that there is a much more general spread of what might be called 'musical consciousness' than when I last visited the United States eight years ago."

Miss Yoshida paid high praise to the genius of the boy violinist Yehudi Menuhin of San Francisco whom she heard play in New York.

THE DIVORCEE

WILL OPEN TODAY

In "The Divorcee" which opens today at the Fox-California theater Norma Shearer again conclusively proves that she has few equals on the talking screen. The star, who has a poise and beauty all her own, gives an intensely moving portrait of a woman who in an attempt to meet the standards of a sophisticated society gives herself up to promiscuous living and almost succeeds in losing her husband in the bargain.

Miss Shearer is seen as Jerry Bernard, daughter of a millionaire, who after three years of married life discovers that Ted, her husband, has recently carried on a liaison with Janice. Bitterly hurt, she forces herself to accept the explanation of her husband that he still loves her only and that the affair was simply an unimportant phenomenon of the current moral code of modern civilization.

When, however, she subsequently meets her husband at his own game and gives herself to his best friend, Ted looks at things in an entirely different light and deserts her. Utterly disillusioned, Jerry abandons herself to a period of free living. After a notorious existence a climax reveals to her the futility of her actions and in an unexpected manner she contrives to win her husband back again.

The plot carries with it several minor situations, including a pathetic interlude in which the husband of a woman whose beauty has been ruined as the result of an automobile accident is torn between loyalty to his wife and his love for Jerry.

"The Divorcee" is probably one of the best stories ever to reach the screen, and from its finished production it is evident that Metro-Goldwyn Mayer was quick to take advantage of this fact.

Also on the program is a Laurel and Hardy comedy entitled "The Brats."

SALLY O'NEIL

IN FILM PLAY AT RICHMOND

Sally O'Neil, who is starred in "Broadway Scandals," the all-talking, singing, dancing musical comedy sensation coming to the Richmond theater tonight, possesses that rare combination, good common sense and artistic ability. Both these characteristics are hers by inheritance. The common sense comes to her through her father, Thomas Francis Noonan, who was a justice of the supreme court. At the time of his death, he was a prospective candidate for the post of Secretary of War. Artistic ability, in good measure was contributed by her mother, Hannah Kelley, who was an opera singer. These qualities make Sally an extremely intelligent and congenial artist. She is always ready to listen to a director's suggestions and will adopt them without any unnecessary display of temperament if she finds them beneficial. An artistic temperament unaccompanied by common sense usually results in an egotistical person who is hard to manage.

On a coast visit she met Marshall Neelan, who was then a director for M. G. M. He was so impressed with her vivacious personality that he selected her for the lead in "Mike," "Sally, Irene and Mary" for M. G. M. followed. She was made. Then came one success after the other.

Miss O'Neil has appeared on the stage but once. This was quite recently in a Fanchon and Marco act. But she loves the footlights and is preparing herself for the time when she will take Broadway by storm. And Sally will. Her dancing and singing in "Broadway Scandals" surpasses that of many Broadway musical comedy queens who are now the talk of the Great White Way.

Jack Egan and Carmel Myers appear with Sally O'Neil in Columbia's musical extravaganza, George Archainbaud directed.

MIX DAUGHTER ELOPES TO ARIZONA

HOLLYWOOD, June 9.—UP—A rather uncertain welcome awaits Ruth Jane Mix, 17, when she returns from Yuma, Ariz., tomorrow with her new husband, Douglas Gilmore, a young actor, who is struggling for recognition in the films.

The daughter of Mix, famous here of cowboy action pictures, eloped today with Gilmore to the desert country which formed the background of the films which brought her father to fame and millions.

A. P. Narian, attorney for Mrs. Olive Stokes Mix, divorced wife of the western actor, did everything in her power to stop the wedding. In true motion picture style, the speedy roadster containing the young couple always was a little ahead of the restraining hand of the law, represented by Narian. U. S. quarantine officers between the states of Arizona and California, and Deputy sheriffs at Yuma.

Bit Different

Narian said tonight that Mrs. Mix appeared a bit different over her daughter's nuptials.

Asked what reception he thought was in store for the bridegroom and bride, Narian replied:

"We can only wait and see what tomorrow will bring."

Reports that Mrs. Mix had been in communication with her former husband, with a circus somewhere in the east, could not be confirmed here.

Runs Away

Mrs. Mix called Narian into the case as soon as she was informed by some friend of her daughter's that Ruth planned to run away and marry the actor.

Narian called the quarantine station, but the pair had passed there a scant half hour before. When the attorney got the Yuma sheriff's office by telephone, a deputy managed to locate Gilmore and the girl. By that time, however, the couple had been married and all the deputy could do was offer congratulations.

Miss Mix was prominent in the younger set of Hollywood where Gilmore was known as a young actor with possibilities. Ruth, herself, has appeared both on the stage and screen in the role of a trick rider and roper, talents she inherited from her father.

Wife Divorced

Mrs. Olive Stokes Mix, the bride's mother, was divorced from Mix in 1917. At that time it was provided that Ruth receive $250 per month from her father under the terms of a settlement.

The bride talked to Attorney Narian for a moment tonight by telephone.

"I am sure I made no mistake," she told Narian. "I am very happy."

The attorney said he advised her to return to Hollywood at once.

Tires of same diameter and tread should always be used on the rear wheels of your car, according to the California State Automobile association. A variation in tires will cause excessive strain on the differential gears.

Winter weather calls for a lighter grade of oil or grease in the transmission and differential, remarks L. G. Evans, general service manager for the National Automobile club. A good cleaning out of both these compartments is not out of place while the change is being made.

Flush Cooling System Often

Periodical flushing of the cooling system is a wise habit to form, suggests L. G. Evans, general service manager of the National Automobile club. Even with the enlarged cooling systems in use at the present day, the formation of scale is quite apt to cause serious damage unless the system receives regular attention.

CARAWAY TELLS SENATE HE'S SORRY

WASHINGTON PARK, June 9.—UP—Chairman Caraway of the Senate lobby committee, today publicly apologized for having "embarrassed" his fellow committee members, Senators Walsh, Dem. Mont., and Blaine, Repn., Wis., in their attempt to question Bishop James Cannon Jr. concerning his 1928 anti-Smith campaign activities.

Caraway also conveyed his regret privately to Walsh and Blaine he said, explaining that his statement from Jonesboro, Ark., was designed merely to discuss what he holds to be the committee's lack of jurisdiction to investigate political matters.

The Arkansas senator said in a press conference, he still held to this view, but that it was "unfortunate" that his statement was interpreted by others, including Cannon himself, to justify the Bishop's walking out of the lobby committee hearing Thursday.

Caraway denied that the committee has been "persecuting" Cannon, as the Bishop himself charged, or anyone else for that matter.

Was Sorry

He said, however, that he realized he had been remiss as the chairman in several particulars, and was sorry for this. He mentioned particularly his absence when Blaine and Superintendent Scott McBride of the anti-saloon league got into a heated argument, which broke up the committee's session a few weeks ago.

Ultimate disposition of Cannon's case, he said, depends on the whole committee. He was indefinite as to when the four other members would be summoned to discuss the subject, but indicated it would be soon.

With Walsh and Blaine contending that Cannon's walkout, during questioning by Blaine, was contempt, it was possible that the entire controversy may be reopened by issuance of a subpoena for the Southern Methodist Bishop. But Cannon has said he will not discuss political activities, even if he is under subpoena.

Some members of the committee, however, are known to hold that the committee would just be playing into Cannon's hands by prosecuting him. A term in jail, possible under the senate contempt statute, they claim, would uphold his charge of persecution and take the nation's attention entirely from the $48,300 of contributions to the anti-Smith fund, which the committee is attempting to trace. Cannon told the press he spent the money in the Virginia anti-Smith campaign.

Denies Lie

Caraway returned today from an automobile trip to Arkansas, and he took occasion to deny as an "infamous damn lie" suggestions that he "ran out" on the committee just as Cannon was to be examined. He also denied printed reports that Arkansas Methodist leaders had something to do with his former statement.

"No living soul undertook to propagandize me with reference to this matter," he said. He said Cannon, despite the lack of a subpoena, was "before the committee for any legal questions the committee wanted to propound."

CONDITIONS IN INDIA TOLD IN REPORT

LONDON, June 9.—UP—A heterogeneous India, presumably requiring further British supervision and control, was pictured in the first half of the long-awaited Simon commission report made public tonight.

The commission, headed by Sir John Simon, which traveled 21,000 miles in 2 1/2 years inquiring into India's capacity for a greater share of self-rule, devoted the first volume, embodying its recommendations, will be made public June 24 "after there has been time to examine and digest the survey."

Sir John and his commissioners, drawn from all three parties in Great Britain, were unanimous in their report. They re-emphasized the preamble of the 1929 India act, saying:

"On the one hand, 'the progressive realization of responsible government in British India as an integral part of the British empire' is the fixed object to the attainment of which, in co-operation with the Indian people themselves, British policy stands pledged; the obstacles in the way are of so formidable a character that no opinion as to what should now be done is worth anything at all until they are duly appreciated; but whatever the obstacles, the object stands as the declared goal of British-India policy."

New Vote

"On the other hand, it is equally part and parcel of the pronouncements of 1917 and 1918 that progress in the attainment of this avowed object 'can only be achieved by successive stages' that the time and manner of each advance can be determined only by parliament."

"The purely British composition of our own body roused resentment in many quarters in India, which we did everything in our power to allay."

The volume after telling of "the confined range within which the flow of political consciousness manifests itself" in India, concludes:

"The political sentiment most widespread among all educated Indians is the expression of a demand for equality with Europeans and a resentment against any suspicion of differential treatment."

Benefits Told

While the experienced member of the civil services will admit the benefits of the British raj (rule) and realize the difficulties in the way of complete self-government; while the member of a communal community, putting the safety of his community first, will stipulate for safeguards; and while the moderate may look askance at extremist methods which he will not openly denounce, all alike are in sympathy with the demands of equal status with the Olskstan and proclaim their belief in self-determination for India.

"It is the general tendency of Nationalist movements to attract within their orbit people of various aims and methods. Until the demands of Nationalism have been reasonably met, enthusiasts for varied reforms make common cause with every discontented element and attribute all the evils which they attack to the absence of self-government. In our view the most formidable of the evils from which India is suffering have their roots in social and economic customs of long standing, which can only be remedied by the Indians themselves. They are much less likely to be remedied if the blame for their continuance can be put, however unreasonably, on others. We desire to see the forces of public opinion which exist in India concentrated and strengthened for the practicable work of reform."

Changes Asked

The survey indicated the commission probably would recommend changes in the present system of communal representation and dyarchy whereby separate Moslem constituencies elect deputies to the provincial and central legislatures and the responsibilities of provincial government are divided between appointed and elected officials. Communal representation has served to emphasize the bitterness between Hindus and Moslems, the survey indicated, while dyarchy has often resulted in confusion and native dodging of responsibility.

India as a whole was pictured as highly rural, illiterate, ignorant of Britain's aims, cleft by religious differences, backward in many customs, and having 2300 castes and 222 vernaculars. The strong women's movement was praised as a progressive factor. The commission apparently was struck by arguments for the separation of Buddhist Burma from the remainder of British India.

Britain's treaties with the princes of the 562 independent states in India were cited as an obstacle to the granting of Indian self-rule. The danger of wild tribal attacks if British troops were withdrawn was inferred. The salt tax and the sale of alcohol and opium, objects of attack by the present Indian independence workers, were mentioned briefly in the finance section of the survey.

Farmers Own 2 Percent Of Motor Vehicles

Twenty-three percent of the nation's motor vehicles are owned on farms, reports the California State Automobile association. Agricultural interests take the stand that no greater assistance can be rendered the farmers than by speeding up road building to enable him to serve new markets and remove the isolation of rural life. By far the largest number of farms are today located on unimproved roads.

Don't Force Motor On Cold Mornings

In case the engine is slow in starting on cold mornings, no attempt should be made to force it, according to the service department of the National Automobile club. A great amount of detrimental wear on the machinery can be avoided by the use of a little patience.

BRESLAU.—The village of Buchwalde near Hoyersda, with a population of about 500, must disappear to permit the working of coal veins underlying it. Thirty-one of the village's 43 houses have already been torn down and the remaining 12 are now being wrecked. The coal deposits were discovered more than 20 years ago, but are only now being opened up. Most of the inhabitants of Buchwalde have gone to the neighboring village of Werninghoff, where they are employed in coal brickett factories.

Hoover Signs Pension Bill

WASHINGTON, June 9.—UP—President Hoover late today signed the Civil War pension bill, liberalizing clauses affecting both veterans and their widows. The president declared that he looked upon the bill as an old age pension.

Screen Lover Divorced By Hollywood Wife

LOS ANGELES, June 9.—UP—After Elsie Bartlett, stage star, testified today that her husband, Joseph Schildkraut, film actor, was subject to such "violent fits of temperament" that it was impossible to live with him, she was granted a divorce by Judge Harry Archbald.

Among other things, Miss Bartlett declared Schildkraut once told her he was such a great actor that it was too bad he was bound to a person of as meager ability as she possessed.

Community property of $20,000 will be divided and Miss Bartlett will receive $200 per week alimony, according to an agreement attached out of court.

Meanwhile, in another courtroom Claudia Dell, former Follies beauty who recently came into pictures, was telling her sad marital story. Miss Dell charged Phillip G. Offen deserted her and she was granted a divorce.

"We had been married two years when he went away and didn't come back," Miss Dell declared. The piano, it is announced, is now fighting for its life in the American home. And one we heard the other night was taking a terrible beating.

Fleagle Gang Loses Appeal

DENVER, Colo., June 9.—UP—The state supreme court today upheld the death penalties on the three Lamar bank bandits, Ralph Fleagle, Howard Royston and George Abshier.

The trio was convicted and sentenced to death for the murders of A. N. Parrish, president of the First National Bank at Lamar, and his son, J. F. Parrish, cashier, during the robbery of the institution in May, 1928.

Fleagle, grey-haired leader of the notorious "Wolf Pack" will be the first to die. His execution is set for the week ending July 12.

Those of Royston and Abshier were fixed for the week ending July 18.

"There is no dispute about any material question of fact," the court said in commenting on the Royston and Abshier cases.

"All the elements of the crime were proved by the state and the defendants made a voluntary written confession."

"Little Jake" Fleagle, brother of Ralph, and fourth member of the gang, is now being sought in Mexico. A large reward has been offered for his capture, dead or alive.

Women are welcoming the all-electric kitchen

Electricity heats water for 1/2 to 1/3 of a cent per gallon

WOMEN appreciate the cleanliness and the convenience of the all-electric kitchen. These are two reasons why almost every one of our customers today who is selecting an electric range is also selecting an automatic electric water heater.

Heating water with electricity is practical. Many electric water heaters installed for P. G. and E. customers, over 10 years ago, are still supplying dependable hot water service.

Another reason why women like the automatic electric water heater is that it offers flexibility in operation—

1. You may operate the heater manually—Turn the switch and heat the quantity of water desired and then turn the switch off. This is the most economical method.

2. You may turn the switch on in the morning and leave the heater operate automatically during the day and then turn the switch off for the afternoon or evening.

3. You may leave the switch on all the time and enjoy hot water 100% automatically—day and night. You'll have plenty of hot water at the turn of the faucet. Still, you will never have to watch the heater.

Automatic electric water heaters come complete with insulated storage tank. Or if you like, you can obtain the automatic heater without the tank and attach the heater to your present tank.

For full details telephone or call at our office—or a dealer's store.

The WAY to WEALTH

The desire to make money quickly is natural but dangerous, when it leads away from safe investment to risky speculation. Many persons became aware of this during the recent break in the stock market. Even those who held good stocks realized the importance and the necessity of having a cash reserve in the bank to meet the unforeseen emergency.

The most important thing it taught was the futility of trying to get rich quick by speculation. The way to wealth is to put money in the bank regularly, where it earns interest and grows steadily, surely and safely.

Come in today. Our officers will be glad to advise with you regarding your financial problems.

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking Nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

MARC O'FARRELL

Copyright 1930, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.
 This story is based on Warner Bros. Vitaphone production of the play by Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein II.

SYNOPSIS
 Fair-skinned Dawn, mystery girl, is about to be burned alive by the infuriated black tribe occupying the British Protectorate in East Africa. As the mystic wife of the black god Malunghu, she failed to produce rain. Tom Allen, her sweetheart, is forced to England but returns. He knows she is white. Shep, shipman and bully, has invited the natives to burn Dawn; double-crossing, he tells her that at the price of her running off with him to the jungles, he will aid her escape. Tom goes to Mombasa to get proofs that Dawn is white; Mombasa Dawn's reputed mother, is startled to find herself followed by a wild old man, Dawn's father.

INSTALLMENT THIRTY-FOUR
 "Tell the bloomin' mutt you're an officer in the service of 'is 'ighness the King of England," suggested Pigeon, irritably.

Tom weighed the suggestion a moment, but dismissed it. He reasoned there was no use wasting time when it was growing so short. "I came here," he said, addressing the attendant, "to see about one of your entertainers. A native woman called Mooda."

To the vast surprise of Tom and Pigeon, the attendant opened the door wide, meantime muttering "Pigeon right!" said Duke. "In what respect?"

"It isn't Colonel Judson whom we must convince with the truth of our claims."

"Then whom must we convince?"

"The natives themselves, Duke. I'm sorry but we appear no better off than before."

"Well, I'll tell the black bonders," declared Duke, "and I challenge them, all of them, to doubt me."

"Who'd listen?" jeered Pigeon. "Abate that Cockney silliness," Duke entreated Tom.

In the thoughtful silence, wretchedly disappointed, to arrive just too late was almost too galling to endure. He rejected Pigeon's suggestion that they procure affidavits attesting Mooda's admission from other witnesses. An affidavit was to a native just another item of trickery foisted upon them by the whites.

"But there is one more chance," said Tom through clenched teeth, "and I'm going to take it. I've got to take it!"

"Right with you, Captain," said Pigeon.

"Here, too," volunteered Duke. "What's the plan?"

"Shep Keres," repeated Duke and Pigeon in unison.

"Yes, he knows the same things Mooda knew," Tom consulted his watch. "We've got to hurry if we're to reach the Hill of Skulls in time. Come on."

Almost running they set out for the trail. Tom eager and determined, Duke and Pigeon puzzled by the nature of the plan of action. To say the truth, Tom was not himself fully aware of how he was to worm the truth out of Shep. That it would require something more than persuasion he too well knew.

On the other hand, he lacked the strength to compel Shep by force to disclose his secret. But hope was high within him. He felt confident that some strategic plan would present itself to him in time.

So high indeed was this new, unidentified hope that during most of the swift journey along the jungle trail the thought that Dawn was in hourly danger of death, a thought that weighed on his mind and heart every moment since his return, did not trouble him. Instead he was comforted by the firm conviction that Dawn was to be saved.

But Pigeon and Duke, stumbling pantingly in his wake, did not share his faith. Pigeon, Pigeon, who had watched the growth of the native revolt from the day Dawn had become Thabu, was particularly morose. But rather than transmit the feeling to Duke he essayed an endless flow of bad anecdotes.

After recrossing the string-like bridge near the Temple of Malunghu, Tom called a halt that they might rest before entering upon the final stretch to the barracks. Though unconscious of selecting that particular tree, Tom suddenly realized that he was leaning against the Tree of the Black God which had sheltered Dawn when he had last beheld her.

Swiftly he surveyed the surrounding scene, his eyes traveling unconsciously toward the Place of the White Moon. Pigeon, who was amazed at the sky above, the clearing was bright with torch flares. A random observation from Pigeon told him that those flares signalled danger.

"If that was where the Hill of Skulls was," said Pigeon idly, "I'd say that was gathering there."

Swiftly Tom fixed his order of procedure. "Quick, you two go to the barracks and arouse the troops. There's no good reason why there should be torches tonight at the Place of the White Moon. Hurry!" (To be continued)

On a report of City Attorney T. H. DeLap that the city had power to act the council ordered Chief of Police R. R. Cheek to have the sign at San Pablo avenue and Panama street removed within ten days.

The complaint was filed last meeting night by Charles Wyatt, owner of the property, that the sign was a detriment to his property and the owner would not remove the sign.

Report of City Treasurer Cora J. M. Simonson showed the following balances on hand June 1: general fund, $14,339.70, street improvement fund, $3,855.88 and fire bond fund $6,969.19.

Parliament Opened

KING CAROL'S WIFE FACES PROBLEMS

came frenzied. Many wept with emotion. On leaving Helene, Carol took residence at the royal palace on the Calea Victoriei, the capital's most prominent thoroughfare, where a suite had been prepared for him. The palace has not been inhabited since the death of King Carol I, although it was used for audiences and contained the royal offices.

Meantime, the best of relations prevailed between Carol and his blood kin. One of the King's principal acts was to sign a decree ratifying all acts of the regency from the death of his father, King Ferdinand, in 1927, until yesterday, when the regency was dissolved.

New Title This movement was made necessary because the proclamation of Carol's reign was made retroactive to Ferdinand's death. Michael, stripped of his past status, of ruler by the proclamation, was seemingly happy with his new title of "Grand Voivode of Alba Julia" meaning Grand Army Leader of Alba Julia.

Nicholas, who acted as one of the three regents for the boy, was named division general and commandant of the military air service by order of his brother.

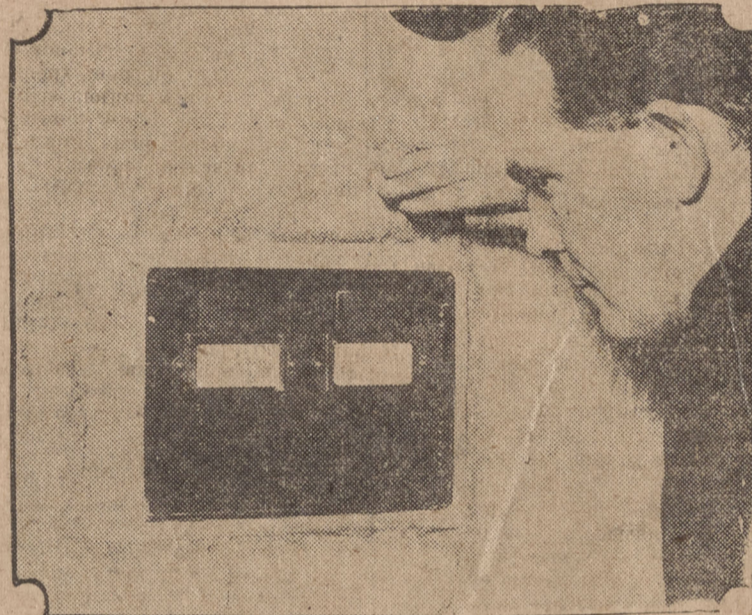

The Dowager Queen Marie who hitherto had been thought to oppose Carol's return, telegraphed her congratulations from Coerantmergau, Germany, where she saw the Passion Play today. Carol replied warmly. Marie will return to Bucharest Friday.

Family Reunion Her daughter, Princess Ileana, will leave Cairo, Egypt, for Bucharest the same day, so that there should be a big family reunion Sunday or Monday.

King Carol laid a wreath on his father's grave, at Curtea de Arges today, before resuming his conferences with political leaders. A cabinet was in process of formation with all factions, considered except the liberals. The latter, who refrained from voting on the proclamation of Carol as king yesterday, held a party congress and maintained their stand against the lover-king.

To demonstrate further that he had no ill-feeling toward any Rumanians, Carol issued a decree of amnesty for military offenses. A political amnesty decree was also expected.

BODIES HUNTED IN TUNNEL DISASTER

LIVERMORE, June 9.—UP—Valiant crews of men fought their way for one mile against torrents of water and over piles of rock in a gas-filled tunnel near here today to recover the bodies of seven men who were killed by an explosion of natural gas and rescue another who had been critically injured.

The victims were working on the two-mile long Alameda tunnel of the Spring Valley Water company, which was recently purchased by the City of San Francisco.

Sunday afternoon, a blast had released gas from a natural pocket into the tunnel. Late Sunday night, the spark of a workman's pick or a short circuit of the electric tram ignited the gas. The resultant explosion rocked the hills for many miles around.

Foreman Saved Richard Lamont, foreman of the crew that was at work in the tunnel when the blast occurred, his clothes were burned from his body, and he was cut by flying stones, but he was still semi-conscious and crawling toward the outside when relief crews found him.

Lamont said he had been the first to smell the gas and had yelled a warning to the other workers only a moment before the explosion. "The fire struck me in the face like a blow from a tri-hammer, and I fell over," he said. "I must have come to right away because I could still hear rocks falling when I opened my eyes."

No Pain "I didn't feel much pain, because my nerves were numbed by the flame. I couldn't hear any of the other men shouting, and I thought I had better go for help."

"I found I couldn't stand up. I tried to locate the telephone, but missed it in the darkness. I could hardly breathe and every time I took a breath my lungs felt as if I were lighting a fire inside them. To breathe at all was terrible agony."

Lamont was brought to a hospital here.

Death List The dead were:

C. S. Palazakis, 37, P. J. Peck, 41, C. Broho, 39, C. DeKloet, 43, Charles C. Cook, 32, all of San Francisco; D. P. Hampton, Los Angeles; Fred Slader, of Colorado. All were single except Palazakis and Hampton.

More than 200 men took part in the rescue work. A short time after the explosion Sam R. Hensley, war buddy of Cook, led several comrades into the tunnel, but they were not equipped with gas masks and were almost overcome by the gas fumes before they could get out again.

BRIAND CHAMP SIGNER OF TREATIES

PARIS, June 9.—UP—Artistic Briand, France's able minister of foreign affairs, now stands undisputed world's champion treaty signer, with 236 victories to his pen. Briand's treaty-signing career is all the more remarkable by its brevity. It is less than 10 years since he signed his first treaty, an accord between France and Belgium concerning pensions for miners and the end is not yet in sight.

Despite the cabinet upsets which have occurred with startling regularity in France since the war, M. Briand has held unbroken rule over the foreign office for more than five years. There is no indication that his reign is over, for his presence at the Quai d'Orsay seems necessary to each incoming hopeful looking for enough support to launch his cabinet.

First Treaty Briand's first big treaty was the accord of Angora, October, 1921, and the Washington accord of December, 1921, settling matters in the Pacific. Since that time he has signed in the name of France all the international agreements and treaties settling such matters as the Dawes Plan and its successor the Young Plan, and all the treaties of friendship and arbitration.

Only one tears' his name, the Kellogg-Briand Pact and that is only an unofficial name, for the real name is the Pact of Paris. He was the foster father of many of the agreements, however, including such humane treaties as that controlling the international commerce in firearms and asphyxiating gases.

Since his advent to power at the Foreign Office, Briand has put France definitely along a pacifist lane. He convinced the theory of the treaties of arbitration and of friendship, whereby France has already agreed with practically every other nation in the world except Russia and Germany to settle their quarrels by arbitration rather than to rush to arms.

Still Effective These conciliatory agreements are now in force with Spain, Portugal, Turkey, Finland, Holland, the United States, Denmark, Poland and Yugoslavia. Briand has signed commercial treaties with most of those states as well.

His signature is on many treaties directly interesting the United States including the Dawes and Young plans; the London and Washington naval agreements; the Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact; Mellon-Brenner debt agreement of April 29, 1926 and the treaty of August 1927, whereby France cedes forever to the United States the little pots of ground upon which the American war monuments have been erected.

Police Guard Negro Section

CHICKASHA, Okla., June 9.—UP—Fear that an assault would be made on the Negro section here caused the posting of extra guards tonight.

Increasing uneasiness arose today when excited crowds attended the court of United States Commissioner H. W. Cabene where 12 men were arraigned on federal charges growing out of recent rioting here which ended with the slaying of a Negro held for assaulting a white woman.

All pleaded not guilty and were ordered held on $2000 bond pending trial in federal court. Four posted bond and were released. The others, including Dr. J. A. Anderson, prominent Oklahoma Democratic political leader and dentist, who yesterday was attacked by two Negroes, and G. W. Skinner, husband of the woman assaulted by the Negro, were returned to jail.

The dentist, who is a candidate for the state legislature from this district, was taken to jail this morning after his release from a hospital where his injuries were treated.

A Japanese naval officer has committed suicide on account of chagrin at his country's defeat in the London conference, but all American admirals are reported alive and kicking.

Masons Hold S. O. Night

Standard Oil night was observed by members of Harbor Masonic lodge last night, by the conferring of a third degree by a picked team of employees of the Standard Oil company.

The degree was conferred by past masters of the lodge, who are employed in the Standard Oil works, on a fellow employee of the company.

Emmett Hitchcock, worshipful master of Harbor lodge presided over the meeting, and W. C. Peterson acted as master during the degree.

A banquet was served in the banquet hall after the meeting, and Leon Hilmyer gave a dialogue as entertainment.

Eclipse Lodge Confers Degree

With B. G. Warrington in charge, the third degree was conferred at last night's meeting of the Eclipse Odd Fellows in the Odd Fellow hall.

Edwin Kamb, noble grand of the organization, presided over the meeting, which was followed by a banquet.
